Mr. SMITH OF NEW JERSEY. Pursuant to notice, I call up the resolution H. Res. 860, calling on the Government of Germany to take immediate action to combat sex trafficking in connection with the 2006 FIFA World Cup for purposes of markup, and move its recommendation to the Full Committee.

109TH CONGRESS
2D SESSION

H. RES. 860

Calling on the Government of Germany to take immediate action to combat sex trafficking in connection with the 2006 FIFA World Cup, and for other purposes.

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

JUNE 9, 2006

Mr. SMITH of New Jersey submitted the following resolution; which was referred to the Committee on International Relations

RESOLUTION

Calling on the Government of Germany to take immediate action to combat sex trafficking in connection with the 2006 FIFA World Cup, and for other purposes.

Whereas trafficking in human beings, for sexual or labor exploitation, is an egregious violation of human rights;

Whereas Congress passed and the President signed into law the Trafficking Victims Protection Act of 2000 (division A of Public Law 106–386), the Trafficking Victims Protection Reauthorization Act of 2003 (Public Law 108–193), and the Trafficking Victims Protection Reauthorization Act of 2005 (Public Law 109–186) in order to promote vigorous efforts worldwide to combat all forms of trafficking in human beings;

Whereas major sporting events, conventions, and other such events that attract large numbers of people have been shown to result in an increase in the demand for commercial sexual services;

Whereas “pimps” and traffickers are aware of this demand and respond to it by trafficking women and girls for prostitution at such events;

Whereas trafficked women are often persuaded to cross international borders by false promises of legitimate employment in other countries, before being forced to engage in prostitution;

Whereas Germany is a major destination country for trafficking of women and children for prostitution, and there are an estimated 400,000 women in prostitution in Germany, 75 percent of whom are foreigners;

Whereas the 2006 FIFA World Cup will be played in 12 German cities and millions of fans will be in attendance;

Whereas individuals and organized crime groups that traffic women and girls for prostitution are expected to increase their activity before and during the 2006 World Cup;

Whereas in December 2001, Germany legalized “pimping”, prostitution, and maintaining a brothel, and officially stated that prostitution is no longer to be seen as immoral;

Whereas Germany’s legalized prostitution industry has been preparing to increase its capacity in anticipation of the 2006 World Cup;

Whereas prostitution and related activities—including pimping and patronizing or maintaining brothels—provide a façade behind which sex traffickers can operate;

Whereas in March 2006 the European Parliament adopted a resolution on “forced prostitution in the context of world sports events”, stating that major sporting events at which large numbers of people congregate results in a “temporary and spectacular increase in the demand for sexual services” and then listing a number of actions that should be undertaken by Germany and others;

Whereas in April 2006, the European Union Justice and Home Affairs Council adopted a list of best practices that should be undertaken by member states holding major international events, including the development and implementation of measures that discourage the demand for trafficking victims;

Whereas Germany has signed the United Nations Convention against Transnational Organized Crime and the United Nations Protocol to Prevent, Suppress, and Punish Trafficking in Persons, Especially Women and Children;

Whereas in February 2006 the United Nations Special Rapporteur on trafficking in persons, especially women and children reported to the United Nations Commission on Human Rights: “For the most part, prostitution as actually practised in the world usually does satisfy the elements of trafficking. . . . Thus, State parties [to the United Nations Protocol to Prevent, Suppress, and Punish Trafficking in Persons, Especially Women and Children] with legalized prostitution industries have a heavy responsibility to ensure that the conditions which actually pertain to the practice of prostitution within their borders are free from the illicit means delineated in subparagraph (a) of the [UN Protocol] definition, so as to ensure that their legalized prostitution regimes are not simply perpetuating widespread and systematic trafficking. As current conditions throughout the world attest, States parties that maintain legalized prostitution are far from satisfying this obligation.”; and

Whereas article 9, paragraph 5, of the United Nations Protocol to Prevent, Suppress, and Punish Trafficking in Persons, Especially Women and Children states: “States Parties shall adopt or strengthen legislative or other measures, such as educational, social or cultural measures, including through bilateral and multilateral cooperation, to discourage the demand that fosters all forms of exploitation of persons, especially women and children, that leads to trafficking.”: Now, therefore, be it

1 Resolved, That the House of Representatives—

2 (1) calls on the Government of Germany to take
3 immediate action to combat sex trafficking in con-
4 nection with the 2006 FIFA World Cup;

5 (2) calls on Germany to take measures to dis-
6 courage the demand that fosters all forms of exploi-
7 tation of persons, especially women and children,
8 that leads to trafficking, including by raising aware-
9 ness among potential users of prostitution and by re-
10 considering the effect of legalized prostitution in cre-
11 ating the demand for prostitution and trafficking;

12 (3) urges countries throughout Europe, includ-
13 ing Germany, to support vigorously public awareness
14 campaigns to inform and educate the general public,
15 particularly athletes, sports fans, and financial spon-
16 sors of the 2006 World Cup, about the potential for

1 trafficking in human beings in response to the rising
2 demand;

3 (4) encourages governments, international orga-
4 nizations, and nongovernmental organizations to en-
5 gage in campaigns targeting potential victims and
6 informing them of the risks and dangers of becom-
7 ing caught in human trafficking networks, particu-
8 larly at the time of the 2006 World Cup;

9 (5) commends the “Final Whistle—Stop Forced 10 Prostitution Campaign” launched by the National
11 Council of German Women’s Organizations and calls
12 on sports associations, including the Fédération
13 Internationale de Football Association (FIFA), the 14 Union of European Football Associations (UEFA),
15 the German Football Association, and others to sup-
16 port this campaign and roundly condemn trafficking
17 in human beings and forced prostitution;

18 (6) encourages sponsors of the 2006 World
19 Cup, as well as tour operators and air transportation 20 service providers, to join in the efforts to end the 21 sexual exploitation of women and girls and prevent
22 trafficking in human beings;

23 (7) urges athletes and coaches of teams com-
24 peting in the 2006 World Cup to denounce the sex-

7

1 ual exploitation of women and girls and to encourage
2 prevention of trafficking in human beings; and

3 (8) urges Germany and all countries to ratify or
4 accede to, and to implement, the United Nations
5 Convention Against Transnational Organized Crime
6 and the United Nations Protocol to Prevent, Sup-
7 press, and Punish Trafficking in Persons, Especially
8 Women and Children.

Mr. SMITH OF NEW JERSEY. Without objection, the amendment will be considered as read. And I would like to recognize myself to make a few opening comments and yield to my colleagues for any comments they might have either on the amendment or on the resolution itself.

I would ask unanimous consent that my full statement be a part of the record. Without objection, so ordered.

One of the tragedies of modern day slavery is that so much of the demand for trafficking comes from countries that espouse commitment to human rights. As the world watches the 2006 FIFA World Cup, a showcase of world-class athleticism and teamwork, Germany, despite its professed commitment to fight the abuse and exploitation of women and girls through trafficking, by certain policies it is facilitating and even encouraging, it aids the very crime it professes to abhor.

In December 2001, the German Government legalized prostitution, which is not only inherently harmful and dehumanizing, but also fuels trafficking because it provides a facade behind which traffickers for sexual exploitation operate. The essential legalization of prostitution also places a greater burden on law enforcement as officials try to distinguish "legal pimps" from human traffickers.

In Germany, there are about 400,000 women in prostitution, 75 percent of whom are foreigners. A 2001 report by the Germany Federal Criminal Investigation Office reported that of the 414 women and girls in prostitution that were surveyed, 45 percent were forced into prostitution through violence, torture, rape or intimidation.

Further research conducted by Melissa Farley at Prostitution Research and Education found that 71 percent of women surveyed were physically assaulted while engaged in prostitution and a staggering 89 percent wanted to escape prostitution. Rather than preventing the abuse of women, any kind of legalization of prostitution appears to condone an act that almost half of the time will result in the physical abuse of women.

Regrettably, according to the 2003 U.N. report, Germany is the top destination country for trafficking in women and children for prostitution, with most victims trafficked from the former Soviet republics and Central and Eastern Europe. The German Government should be outraged by this and immediately take a look at their policies which makes Germany such an inviting country for traffickers.

Let me just say, finally, a couple of points. This legislation has 30 cosponsors. It calls on fans, players, and all citizens to boycott the brothels and calls on the Government of Germany to take immediate action to halt state sponsorship of commercial sexual exploitation that leads to sex trafficking of women in connection with the World Cup games.

[The prepared statement of Mr. Smith follows:]

PREPARED STATEMENT OF THE HONORABLE CHRISTOPHER H. SMITH, A REPRESENTATIVE IN CONGRESS FROM THE STATE OF NEW JERSEY AND CHAIRMAN, SUBCOMMITTEE ON AFRICA, GLOBAL HUMAN RIGHTS AND INTERNATIONAL OPERATIONS

H. RES. 860

One of the tragedies of modern day slavery is that so much of the demand for trafficking comes from countries that espouse commitment to human rights. As the world watches the 2006 FIFA World Cup, a showcase of world-class athleticism and teamwork, Germany, despite its professed commitment to fight the abuse and exploitation of women and girls through trafficking, by certain policies is facilitating or encouraging the very crime it professes to abhor.

In December 2001 the German government legalized prostitution, which is not only inherently harmful and dehumanizing, but it also fuels trafficking because it provides a façade behind which traffickers for sexual exploitation operate. Legalization of prostitution also places a greater burden on law enforcement as officials try to distinguish legal pimps from human traffickers.

According to the U.S. State Department, where prostitution is legalized or tolerated, there is a greater demand for human trafficking victims and nearly always an increase in the number of women and children trafficked into commercial sexual slavery. Major sporting events and conventions attract large numbers of people and also have been proven to result in an increase in the demand for commercial sexual services. Pimps and traffickers jump to respond to the demand by trafficking women and girls for prostitution to events, such as the World Cup.

In Germany there are more than 400,000 women in prostitution, 75% of whom are foreigners. A 2001 report by the German Federal Criminal Investigation Office reported that of the 414 women and girls in prostitution that were surveyed, 45% were forced into prostitution through violence, torture, rape, or intimidation.

Further research conducted by Melissa Farley at Prostitution Research and Education found that 71% of women surveyed were physically assaulted while engaged in prostitution and a staggering 89% wanted to escape prostitution. Rather than preventing the abuse of women, the legalization of prostitution appears to condone an act that almost half the time will result in the physical abuse of a woman.

Regrettably, according to a 2003 UN report, Germany is the top destination country for trafficking in women and children for prostitution, with most victims trafficked from the former Soviet republics and Central and Eastern Europe. The German government should be outraged by this and immediately begin to look at their policies which make Germany such an inviting country for traffickers.

In 1993, there were 517 cases of illegal sex slave trade; in 2003, the number of identified victims was 1,235. Although specific statistics aren't available, a recent UN report estimates the number of forced laborers in Germany to be anywhere from 2,000—20,000. Most of these are women from Eastern Europe who were forced into prostitution.

The link between legalization of prostitution and trafficking was recognized in the U.S. State Department's 1999 Country Report on Human Rights Practices, released by the Bureau of Democracy, Human Rights and Labor. In the country report on Australia, it was noted that in the State of Victoria which legalized prostitution in the 1980s, "Trafficking in East Asian women for the sex trade is a growing problem" in Australia. ". . . lax laws—including legalized prostitution in parts of the country—make [anti-trafficking] enforcement difficult at the working level." In order for the German government to successfully combat trafficking in persons it must reverse the legalization of prostitution.

The European Union has also expressed concern that the legalization of prostitution in Germany provides an atmosphere for World Cup fans to legally rape women in brothels or in mobile units designed for quick and discrete entrances and exists for the rapists. Europeans and Americans are not the only ones watching in horror as Germany potentially plays host to human traffickers. Vivi Akakpo, the West African coordinator for the All Africa Conference of Churches said, "It is now public knowledge that organized syndicates have plans to bring in young women, particularly from Eastern Europe and from other poor countries, to Germany in time for the World Soccer Cup 2006."

While I welcome the recent ratification by the German government of the UN Protocol to Prevent, Suppress, and Punish Trafficking in Persons, Especially Women and Children, as my amendment states, such actions are only a necessary first step in combating trafficking in persons in Germany. This resolution encourages the German government to implement the protocol as soon as possible.

This legislation, which has 30 cosponsors, also calls for fans, players, and all citizens to boycott the Brothels and calls on the government of Germany to take immediate action to halt state sponsorship of commercial sexual exploitation that leads to sex trafficking of women in connection with the World Cup games.

The many athletes and coaches of teams that will play in the World Cup can be a voice for the voiceless and should denounce Germany's complicity in sex trafficking. Sponsors of the World Cup should also join in the efforts to end the sexual exploitation of women and girls and prevent trafficking in human beings.

All those who support the dignity of women should demand strong and immediate actions by the German government to reverse its facilitation of sex trafficking. I ask my colleagues to give favorable consideration to H. Res. 860, which is a very timely and necessary statement to our colleagues in Germany that it is their responsibility to fully comply with the spirit of anti-trafficking efforts and reverse its pro-commercial sex laws.

Mr. SMITH OF NEW JERSEY. Let me also point out to my colleagues, as they all know, we held a series of hearings, the first hearing devoted exclusively to the situation in Germany, followed by a general trafficking hearing at which we heard from two Russian women who had been trafficked into Germany previously who told us exactly the kind of degradation they suffered.

This resolution puts us, we believe, on the side of saying we ought to be all about protecting women from this kind of degrading treatment, whether it be a seemingly legal establishment or that thin line of demarcation that separates truly trafficked women.

The amendment I am offering does recognize some of the efforts of the German Government. Well, they just recently, within days, ratified the United Nations Convention Against Transnational Organized Crime and the U.N. Protocol to Prevent, Suppress, and Punish Trafficking in Persons, especially women and children. And then we urge the Government of Germany to fully implement that.

So in the midst of all of this they have done something that at least looks good. The key will be in its implementation.

We also, in this amendment, since the German Government expressed some concern that we used the word "legalized," we strike the word "legalized" and put in what they claim is what has happened, and that is—and the language reads as such:

"Officially declared that prostitution is no longer to be seen as immoral and amended its legal code to legalize the maintaining of a brothel to permit 'pimping,' except when it involves exploiting a prostitute by impairing her personal or economic independence, and to elevate prostitution to the status of a legitimate profession."

Obviously, I don't agree that that is a good thing, but they wanted a clarification as to "legalization" versus what it is that they have done.

I would now turn to my friend and colleague, Mr. Payne, for any opening comments he might have.

Mr. PAYNE. Thank you very much.

Let me commend you for being vigilant on this whole question of trafficking and protecting victims, and as it particularly pertains to the World Cup that is actually being held today.

Actually, the World Cup is the largest sporting event in the world, and I do believe that countries should not allow sexual exploitation to be a large part of this sporting event, which is healthy, which is competitive, which is team-building in national pride.

And so I certainly support this legislation and urge its adoption.

Mr. SMITH OF NEW JERSEY. Are there any other Members who would like to be heard?

Ms. WATSON. Yes.

Mr. SMITH OF NEW JERSEY. Ambassador Watson.

Ms. WATSON. Thank you so much, Mr. Chairman, for bringing this issue and this resolution to us again.

This is specific to a specific activity that is taking place now, but before this probably completes the process, the games will be over. However, is there a possibility to put into this message—because it sends a message—that we would like to see the governments look at this whole industry and possibly set up a program.

Let me just tell you where I am coming from. When we were getting ready to have the Olympics in Los Angeles in 1986, I put in a piece of legislation that would require rape counseling centers in every police precinct. I got a call from my mayor saying that in one of the Russian newspapers, Izvestia, they said that the rape rate is so high that one of the local representatives is asking for a counseling center. So it struck a note that far away.

And so referring to the pimping and the prostitution industry, I am wondering if we could strike a note with them to say that we would like Germany, in particular, to review its policies and so on.

Now I don't know if it is there; I haven't read it all the way through. I just raise that issue because I think that this whole industry needs to be reviewed in these countries if they are going to host a world game.

Mr. SMITH OF NEW JERSEY. Will the gentlewoman yield?

Ms. WATSON. Yes, I do yield.

Mr. SMITH OF NEW JERSEY. We do have in the resolved clause an emphasis on demand, trying to reduce demand. We also talk about one of the groups, the Final Whistle-Stop Forced Prostitution Campaign, and the work they are doing to try to mitigate this abuse.

But certainly any additional language that you think might be helpful as we go to Full Committee; or if you have it ready now, we would certainly—if it strengthens the resolution, let's do it, because we do want to send a very consistent message on prevention—protection for the women and prosecution of those who exploit.

Ms. WATSON. If I can respond, let me just say that I would like to take this and when it comes to the Floor, I would like to offer an amendment to the last section, subsection 8, lines 3 to 4, because we are in this resolution urging "Germany and all countries to ratify or accede to," and it goes on. So I would like to, within this language, to have some specificity. You know, we ought to stand for discouraging this kind of thing.

So I would like to add some language, and I will bring it up at that time. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

Mr. SMITH OF NEW JERSEY. Would any other Members like to be heard?

If not, the question occurs on the amendment.

All those in favor, signify by saying aye.

Opposed, no.

In the opinion of the Chair, the ayes have it and the agreement is agreed to.

The question now occurs on the motion to report the resolution H. Res. 860, as amended.

All those in favor, signify by saying aye.

Opposed, no.

The ayes have it and the amendment is agreed to. The staff is directed to make any technical and conforming amendments.

Without objection, the resolution will be reported favorably to the Full Committee in the form of a single amendment in the nature of a substitute, incorporating the amendment adopted here today. Without objection, the staff is directed to make any technical and conforming amendments.

Pursuant to notice, I now call up the bill H.R. 4319, the Assistance for Small and Medium Enterprises in sub-Saharan African Countries Act of 2005 for purposes of markup and move its consideration recommendation to the Full Committee.

[H.R. 4319 follows:]

109TH CONGRESS
1ST SESSION

H. R. 4319

To provide assistance for small and medium enterprises in sub-Saharan African countries, and for other purposes.

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

NOVEMBER 15, 2005

Mr. LANTOS (for himself and Mr. SMITH of New Jersey) introduced the following bill; which was referred to the Committee on International Relations, and in addition to the Committee on Ways and Means, for a period to be subsequently determined by the Speaker, in each case for consideration of such provisions as fall within the jurisdiction of the committee concerned

A BILL

To provide assistance for small and medium enterprises in sub-Saharan African countries, and for other purposes.

1 Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representa-
2 tives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

3 SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE; TABLE OF CONTENTS.

4 (a) SHORT TITLE.—This Act may be cited as the 5 “Assistance for Small and Medium Enterprises in Sub-
6 Saharan African Countries Act of 2005”.

7 (b) TABLE OF CONTENTS.—The table of contents of 8 this Act is as follows:

- Sec. 1. Short title; table of contents.
Sec. 2. Findings.
Sec. 3. Sense of Congress; declaration of policy.
Sec. 4. Activities of the Overseas Private Investment Corporation to strengthen financial institutions in sub-Saharan African countries.
Sec. 5. Assistance for small and medium enterprises in sub-Saharan African countries.
Sec. 6. Actions to improve trade between sub-Saharan African countries and the United States.
Sec. 7. Definitions.

1 SEC. 2. FINDINGS.

2 Congress finds the following:

3 (1) According to the Organization for Economic
4 Co-operation and Development (OECD), the econo-
5 mies of sub-Saharan African countries have reg-
6 istered their highest overall growth in eight years—
7 more than five percent in 2004—due to rising global
8 commodity prices, the expansion of production in oil-
9 producing sub-Saharan African countries, and pru-
10 dent macro-economic policies.

11 (2) While economic liberalization has reduced
12 the involvement of governments of sub-Saharan Afri-
13 can countries in the economic sector, it has not re-
14 sulted in improved credit delivery to finance domes-
15 tic businesses, particularly small and medium enter-
16 prises in sub-Saharan African countries, in the pri-
17 vate sector.

18 (3) Despite the privatization of over 2,273 busi-
19 nesses in sub-Saharan African countries and $9.1
20 billion raised, private sector investment still lags be-

1 hind Asia, in large part due to inadequate infra-
2 structure, including electricity, water, roads, and
3 commerce facilities, and a risk-averse retail banking
4 sector.

5 (4) Sub-Saharan Africa countries hold billions
6 of uninvested capital in central banks and financial
7 holding institutions. In the eight-nation West Afri-
8 can Economic and Monetary Union the amount of 9 excess capital in the central bank recently peaked at 10 almost $2 billion.

11 (5) Excess reserves of uninvested capital in sub-
12 Saharan African countries have often been illicitly
13 diverted or invested in economically inefficient enter-
14 prises and other purposes, often for the benefit of 15 politically-connected persons or entities.

16 (6) Nigerian President Olusegun Obasanjo re-
17 cently estimated that corrupt leaders of sub-Saharan
18 African countries have stolen at least $140 billion
19 from their citizens in the four decades since inde-
20 pendence. This theft contributes to the fact that the 21 people of sub-Saharan African countries owe
22 unsustainably large public and foreign debts, face
23 high rates of extreme poverty, and have enjoyed lit-
24 tle basic economic development.

1 (7) Increasingly, governments of sub-Saharan
2 African countries are making concerted efforts to in-
3 vestigate such activities, prosecute corrupt officials,
4 and recover public funds through the creation of
5 agencies such as the Economic and Financial Crimes
6 Commission in Nigeria, the Serious Fraud Office in
7 Ghana, the Federal Ethics and Anticorruption Com-
8 mission in Ethiopia, and the Anticorruption Com-
9 mission in Zambia.

10 (8) These efforts will require technical assist-
11 ance and law enforcement cooperation from the 12 international community, including the United
13 States.

14 (9) A major challenge for sub-Saharan African
15 countries is to productively invest their own capital
16 to expand domestic business ownership and create
17 employment, particularly for youth, in order to pro-
18 mote broad and sustainable economic growth.

19 (10) While the microenterprise movement has
20 shown itself to be an important generator of self-em-
21 ployment, research and experience throughout sub-
22 Saharan Africa also have proven that small and me-
23 dium enterprises are the greatest catalyst for job
24 creation, skills transfer, and wealth creation in sub-
25 Saharan Africa.

1 (11) Although small and medium enterprises in
2 sub-Saharan African countries make up the largest
3 portion of the formal economy in sub-Saharan Afri-
4 can countries, the average annual contribution of in-
5 vestments of such small and medium enterprises to
6 growth in the gross domestic product of sub-Saha-
7 ran African countries by proportion declined from an 8 average of 14 percent in the 1970s, to 13 percent
9 in the 1980s, and to 12 percent in the first half of 10 the 1990s, while during the same period, the propor-
11 tion of gross domestic product investment by small
12 and medium enterprises in other developing regions
13 increased.

14 (12) Investments in small and medium enter-
15 prises in sub-Saharan African countries also have 16 declined, in part because an estimated 37 percent of 17 personal wealth in sub-Saharan African countries is
18 held in assets and cash located outside of sub-Saha-
19 ran African countries, even though the global region
20 with the highest return on capital investment is sub-
21 Saharan Africa.

22 (13) Many retail banks avoid lending to small
23 and medium enterprises in sub-Saharan African
24 countries or engage in predatory lending practices,
25 considering such small and medium enterprises as

1 presenting a high credit default risk and as costly to
2 administer, and instead concentrate on providing
3 credit to larger local or international firms or on 4 holding high-yield government bonds.

5 (14) This approach harms the prospects for
6 sustainable private sector development by ignoring
7 the necessity of a bottom-up capital formation—a
8 key factor in creating jobs which is necessary to re-
9 duce poverty and income inequalities.

10 (15) Governments of sub-Saharan African
11 countries must develop the fiscal policies, economic 12 institutions, legal frameworks, labor market protec-
13 tions, commercial infrastructures, and lending prac-
14 tices to create and manage competitive business en-
15 vironments for investors in small and medium enter-
16 prises in sub-Saharan African countries. Further,
17 small and medium enterprises in sub-Saharan Afri-
18 can countries must acquire the business skills, ex-
19 pertise, and capital financing necessary to manage
20 successful businesses.

21 SEC. 3. SENSE OF CONGRESS; DECLARATION OF POLICY.

22 (a) SENSE OF CONGRESS.— It is the sense of Con-
23 gress that in an increasingly competitive global environ-
24 ment driven by transformations in technology, commu-
25 nications, transportation, finance, production, labor mar-

1 kets, and markets for goods and services, sub-Saharan Af-
2 rican countries should develop the private sector, particu-
3 larly small and medium enterprises, and human capital,
4 goods and services, banking and finance systems, and cre-
5 ate markets to be full participants in the global economy.

6 (b) DECLARATION OF POLICY.—It shall be the policy
7 of the Government of the United States to make available
8 for private sector development in sub-Saharan African 9 countries professional, technical, and other resources for 10 capacity-building for finance ministries, central and retail
11 banks, and small and medium enterprises to promote en-
12 trepreneurship, expand the formal sector, and increase
13 trade under the African Growth and Opportunity Act (19 14 U.S.C. 3701 et seq.) of exports from Africa to the United
15 States.

11 “(C) support effective credit risk manage-
12 ment by developing internal credit rating sys-
13 tems and credit assessment tools that improve
14 the ability of such financial institutions to

19 assistance to eligible sub-Saharan African countries
20 under the African Growth and Opportunity Act (19
21 U.S.C. 3701 et seq.) to assist such countries to con-
22 tinue to meet the eligibility requirements under such
23 Act, including eligibility requirements relating to po-
24 litical and economic reforms.

1 (2) TECHNICAL ASSISTANCE RELATING TO
2 AGOA BENEFITS.—The President, acting through the
3 Administrator of the United States Agency for 4 International Development, shall provide technical
5 assistance to eligible sub-Saharan African countries
6 under the African Growth and Opportunity Act to 7 enable small and medium enterprises in sub-Saharan
8 African countries, including agricultural producers,
9 processors and traders, to maximize benefits under
10 such Act (and the amendments made by that Act),
11 including—

12 (A) specific training for business owners
13 on expanding access to the benefits of the Afri-
14 can Growth and Opportunity Act (and the 15 amendments made by that Act) and other trade
16 preference programs;

17 (B) capacity building for entrepreneurs on
18 production strategies, quality standards, forma-
19 tion of cooperatives, market research, and mar-
20 ket development;

21 (C) capacity building to promote diver-
22 sification of products and value-added proce-
23 ssing; and

24 (D) capacity building and technical assist-
25 ance for businesses and institutions to help

1 them comply with United States counter-ter-
2 rorism laws.

3 (3) TRANSPORTATION AND COMMUNICA-
4 TIONS.—

5 (A) FINDINGS.—Congress finds the fol-
6 lowing:

7 (i) A major impediment to trade be-
8 tween sub-Saharan African countries and
9 the United States is inadequate direct and 10 regular transport, for products and people,
11 between such countries and the United
12 States.

13 (ii) This transport deficit has reduced
14 the competitiveness of products of sub-Sa-
15 haran African countries, hindered the peo-
16 ple of sub-Saharan African countries from 17 expanding exports of perishable items,
18 such as cut flowers or fresh fruits and
19 vegetables, limited the ability of sub-Saha-
20 ran African countries to increase tourism,
21 and limited the overall volume of trade be-
22 tween sub-Saharan African countries and
23 the United States.

24 (B) SENSE OF CONGRESS.—It is the sense
25 of Congress that there should be an expansion

1 of port-to-port relationships between sub-Saha-
2 ran African countries and the United States.
3 Such relationships should facilitate—

4 (i) increased coordination between
5 land, sea, and airports to reduce time in 6 transit and thus freight charges;

7 (ii) interaction between technical staff
8 from land, sea, and airports in sub-Saha-
9 ran African countries and the United
10 States to increase efficiency and safety
11 procedures and protocols;

12 (iii) coordination between chambers of
13 commerce, freight forwarders, customs bro-
14 kers, and others involved in consolidating
15 and moving freight; and

16 (iv) joint negotiations with shipping
17 companies and airlines on direct shipping
18 and flights between land, sea, and airports
19 in sub-Saharan African countries and the 20 United States to increase frequency and 21 capacity.

22 (C) ASSISTANCE.—The President, acting
23 through the Administrator of the United States
24 Agency for International Development and the 25 Global Development Alliance of the Agency,

1 shall facilitate trade between sub-Saharan Afri-
2 can countries and the United States by encour-
3 aging public-private partnerships involving busi-
4 nesses in sub-Saharan African countries and
5 the United States, national and local govern-
6 ments, bilateral donors, and international finan-
7 cial institutions, to create needed transportation
8 and communication infrastructure for products
9 and people between rural areas and markets
10 (such as “farm-to-market” roads), and between 11 sub-Saharan African countries.

12 (f) ACTIONS OF THE SMALL BUSINESS ADMINISTRA-
13 TION.—The Administrator of the Small Business Adminis-
14 tration should conduct trade training programs for small
15 businesses in the United States, such as the Export Trade
16 Assistance Program, which convey basic information on 17 selling goods to foreign markets, including markets in sub-
18 Saharan African countries.

19 (g) AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.—

20 (1) GENERAL ACTIVITIES.—There are author-
21 ized to be appropriated to carry out this section
22 (other than subsection (b)) $5,000,000 for each of 23 the fiscal years 2007 and 2008.

24 (2) ACTIVITIES OF THE DEPARTMENT OF
25 STATE.—There are authorized to be appropriated to

1 carry out subsection (b) $3,000,000 for each of the 2 fiscal years 2007 and 2008.

3 (3) AVAILABILITY.—Amounts appropriated pur-
4 suant to the authorization of appropriations under
5 paragraphs (1) and (2) are authorized to remain
6 available until expended.

7 SEC. 7. DEFINITIONS.

8 In this Act:

9 (1) SMALL AND MEDIUM ENTERPRISES IN SUB-
10 SAHARAN AFRICAN COUNTRIES.—The term “small
11 and medium enterprises in sub-Saharan African
12 countries” has the meaning given the term in section
13 496A(e)(2) of the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961
14 (as added by section 5(a) of this Act).

15 (2) SUB-SAHARAN AFRICAN COUNTRIES.—The
16 term “sub-Saharan African countries” means the 17 countries specified in section 107 of the African 18 Growth and Opportunity Act (19 U.S.C. 3706).

Mr. SMITH OF NEW JERSEY. Without objection, the bill will be considered as read and open for amendment at any point.

The clerk will report the bill.

Ms. PLUMLEY. H.R. 4319, to provide assistance for small and medium enterprises in sub-Saharan African countries and for other purposes.

Mr. SMITH OF NEW JERSEY. Without objection, it is considered as read and open for amendment. And I recognize myself for a brief moment to explain the bill.

Two weeks ago this Committee held a hearing on removing obstacles to small and medium enterprises in Africa. That hearing was a prelude to our consideration of H.R. 4319, the Assistance For Small and Medium Enterprises in sub-Saharan African Countries Act.

I would like to thank Mr. Lantos, the Ranking Member of our Full Committee, for his cooperative efforts in working with me and other Members of the Committee to craft this legislation—it is his bill—to meet a need that our hearing confirmed.

While the African Growth and Opportunity Act, or AGOA, was intended to build business linkages between African and American entrepreneurs, too often these linkages have involved the oil trade rather than small and medium enterprises. As we all know, it is small businesses that create jobs, and the lack of small and medium enterprises' participation in AGOA limits the benefits we had hoped such businesses would realize.

In the hearing, we heard witnesses tell us that too many obstacles interfered with the ability of small and medium enterprises to take advantage of the opportunities offered by AGOA. One of the main problems is the lack of attention to United States-African agricultural trade; 70 percent of Africans are engaged in agriculture, and if our trade preliminaries have any hope of reducing poverty, we must help small and medium businesses in the agricultural sector.

H.R. 4319 does just that. To that end, H.R. 4319 empowers the FDA to provide technical assistance to African farmers to ensure that their exports meet American requirements and calls on the Department of Agriculture to help improve market access for United States agricultural products in African countries.

H.R. 4319 does not neglect small and medium enterprises outside of the agricultural sector. It calls on the Small Business Administration to convey basic information on selling goods in foreign markets.

A very important aspect of this legislation is that H.R. 4319 protects the rights of workers to encourage productive labor-management relations so that increased United States-Africa trade is not plagued by workers laboring in unsafe conditions.

Provisions of this bill have long been championed by Members of the Committee, including Mr. Payne and Mr. Royce, but were stripped out from the last AGOA bill. We believe that the reinsertion of these provisions in the legislation will enable our trade preference programs to be more effective in broadening the benefits to small and medium enterprises.

I yield to Mr. Payne for his comments.

[The prepared statement of Mr. Smith follows:]

PREPARED STATEMENT OF THE HONORABLE CHRISTOPHER H. SMITH, A REPRESENTATIVE IN CONGRESS FROM THE STATE OF NEW JERSEY AND CHAIRMAN, SUBCOMMITTEE ON AFRICA, GLOBAL HUMAN RIGHTS AND INTERNATIONAL OPERATIONS

H.R. 4319

Two weeks ago, this Subcommittee held a hearing on removing obstacles to small and medium enterprises in Africa. That hearing was a prelude to our consideration of H.R. 4319—the Assistance for Small and Medium Enterprises in Sub-Saharan African Countries Act.

I'd like to thank Mr. Lantos, the ranking member of our Committee, for his cooperative efforts in working with me to craft this legislation to meet a need that our hearing confirmed. While the African Growth and Opportunity Act, or AGOA, was intended to build business linkages between African and American entrepreneurs, too often these linkages have involved the oil trade rather than small and medium enterprises. As we all know, it is small business that creates jobs, and the lack of small and medium enterprise participation in AGOA limits the benefits we had hoped such businesses would realize.

In the hearing, we heard witnesses tell us that too many obstacles interfered with the ability of small and medium enterprises to take advantage of the opportunities offered by AGOA. One of the main problems is the lack of attention to U.S.-African agriculture trade. Seventy percent of Africans are engaged in agriculture, and if our trade programs have any hope of reducing poverty, we must help small and medium business in the agriculture sector. H.R. 4319 does that.

To that end, H.R. 4319 also empowers the Food and Drug Administration to provide technical assistance to African farmers to ensure that their exports meet American requirements and calls on the Department of Agriculture to help improve market access for U.S. agricultural products in Africa countries.

However, H.R. 4319 does not neglect small and medium enterprises outside the agriculture sector. It calls on the Small Business Administration to convey basic information on selling goods in foreign markets.

A very important aspect of this legislation is that H.R. 4319 protects the rights of workers and encourages productive labor-management relations so that increased U.S.-Africa trade is not plagued by workers laboring in unsafe conditions.

Provisions of this bill have long been championed by members of the Subcommittee, such as Mr. Royce and Mr. Payne, but were stripped from the last AGOA bill. We believe the reinsertion of these provisions in legislation will enable all our trade preference programs to be more effective in broadening the benefits to small and medium enterprises.

I ask my colleagues to give favorable consideration to H.R. 4319, which is a very timely and useful effort to make U.S.-Africa trade as effective as it was intended to be.

Mr. PAYNE. Thank you, Mr. Chairman. And I strongly support 4319. As we know, perhaps 80 percent of population in Africa lives in rural areas, and it would just seem that it is a natural thing for people who live in rural areas to be able to use that area for agriculture.

We do know there are some problems here in our country, in Europe and in Japan where a tremendous amount of agricultural subsidies are given to the farmers in the Western Europe, United States and Japanese countries. We will be unable to impact that here immediately, but I think that we should do everything that we can to assist the African farmer.

Unfortunately, about 25 years ago, USAID got out of the business of assisting in farming, and until Administrator Natsios returned, there was no emphasis on agriculture at all, and he did start a move for USAID to focus on agriculture.

If you keep people—if there are opportunities in the agricultural regions, it will prevent people from rushing to the cities where the cities are overcrowded. It creates slums; people are looking for employment, and it just exacerbates an already bad situation. And so if there is a way to keep people in the rural areas in agricultural sectors, I think that that helps the countries in general.

Mr. Natsios has left USAID, but I hope the new administrator will pick up on the whole question of agriculture. But I think that this bill will certainly go a long way in assisting small and medium-size enterprises, and so I urge support of the legislation.

Mr. SMITH OF NEW JERSEY. Thank you.

Are there any amendments to the bill? Would anyone else like to be heard?

Ms. WATSON. Mr. Chairman, I do have a concern that was brought to me by representatives of the Ethiopian Government, and it had to do with IP, intellectual property.

But more so than that, they are the producer of a very fine coffee bean upon which some newly established coffee houses have made their fortunes; and the trade arrangements are such that there is a disincentive for the country of Ethiopia to grow the coffee bean, because they only get, like, 1 percent of the take, and it costs them so much to farm.

So I might also look to see if we can put protections in here for the intellectual property. They are trying to grab their brand name from them, so there are some trade considerations that I would like to see. I will then look at bill and prepare an amendment along those lines.

Mr. SMITH OF NEW JERSEY. Thank you.

The question occurs on the motion to report the bill H.R. 4319, Assistance For Small and Medium Enterprises in sub-Saharan African Countries Act of 2005, favorably.

All those in favor, signify by saying aye.

Opposed, no.

The motion is approved and the bill is reported favorably. The staff is directed to make any technical and conforming amendments.

We now move to our next piece of legislation. Pursuant to notice, I call up the bill H.R. 4780, the Global Online Freedom Act of 2006, for purposes of markup, and move its favorable recommendation to the Full Committee. Without objection, the bill will be considered as read and open for amendment at any point.

[H.R. 4780 follows:]

109TH CONGRESS
2D SESSION

H. R. 4780

To promote freedom of expression on the Internet, to protect United States businesses from coercion to participate in repression by authoritarian foreign governments, and for other purposes.

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

FEBRUARY 16, 2006

2 tives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

COUNTRIES

3 SEC. 2. FINDINGS.

4 Congress makes the following findings:

- 5 (1) Freedom of speech and freedom of the press
6 are fundamental human rights, and free use of the 7 Internet is protected in Article 19 of the Universal
8 Declaration of Human Rights, which guarantees
9 freedom to “receive and impart information and 10 ideas through any media regardless of frontiers”.

1 (2) The Internet has been a success because it
2 quickly provides information to its more than 972
3 million users globally.

4 (3) The growth of the Internet and other infor-
5 mation technologies can be a force for democratic
6 change if the information is not subject to political
7 censorship.

8 (4) The Internet has played a role in bringing
9 international attention to issues the discussion of
10 which are forbidden by authoritarian foreign govern-
11 ments, such as attempts by the Government of the 12 People's Republic of China to suppress news of the
13 severe acute respiratory syndrome (SARS) outbreak
14 in 2004.

15 (5) The rapid provision of full and uncensored
16 information through the Internet has become a
17 major industry of the United States, and one of its
18 major exports.

19 (6) Political censorship of the Internet degrades
20 the quality of that service and ultimately threatens
21 the integrity and viability of the industry itself, both
22 in the United States and abroad.

23 (7) Authoritarian foreign governments such as
24 the Governments of Belarus, Burma, the People's
25 Republic of China, Cuba, Iran, Libya, the Maldives,

1 Nepal, North Korea, Saudi Arabia, Syria, Tunisia,
2 Turkmenistan, Uzbekistan, and Vietnam block, re-
3 strict, and monitor the information their citizens try
4 to obtain.

5 (8) Web sites that provide uncensored news and
6 information, such as the Web sites of the Voice of
7 America and Radio Free Asia, are routinely blocked
8 in such countries.

9 (9) In June 2003, the Government of the So-
10 cialist Republic of Vietnam arrested, convicted of
11 “spying”, and sentenced to 13 years’ imprisonment
12 and 3 years’ house arrest (later reduced on appeal
13 to 5 years’ imprisonment and 6 years’ house arrest)
14 Dr. Pham Hong Son after he translated an Internet
15 article titled “What is Democracy” from the Web
16 site of the United States Embassy in Vietnam.

17 (10) According to the Department of State’s
18 Country Reports on Human Rights Practices, the
19 Government of Vietnam in 2004 tightened control of
20 the Internet, requiring Internet agents, such as
21 cyber cafes, to register the personal information of
22 their customers and store records of Internet sites
23 visited by customers. The Vietnamese Government
24 also monitored electronic mail, searched for sensitive
25 key words, and regulated Internet content.

1 (11) The Government of the People’s Republic
2 of China has employed censorship of the Internet in
3 violation of Article 35 of the Chinese Constitution,
4 which guarantees freedom of speech, freedom of the
5 press, freedom of assembly, freedom of association,
6 freedom of procession, and freedom of demonstra-
7 tion.

8 (12) This censorship by the Chinese Govern-
9 ment promotes, perpetuates, and exacerbates a
10 xenophobic—and at times particularly anti-Amer-
11 ican—Chinese nationalism, the long-term effect of
12 which will be deleterious to United States efforts to
13 prevent the relationship between the United States
14 and China from becoming hostile.

15 (13) Unchecked transfers of dual use tech-
16 nology have already increased China’s ability to suc-
17 cessfully invade Taiwan, and correspondingly dimin-
18 ished United States and Taiwanese capacity to de-
19 fend that democratic society, thereby greatly increas-
20 ing tension in East Asia.

21 (14) Technology companies in the United
22 States that operate in countries controlled by au-
23 thoritarian foreign governments have a responsibility
24 to comply with the principles of the Universal Dec-
25 laration of Human Rights.

1 (15) Technology companies in the United
2 States have succumbed to pressure by authoritarian
3 foreign governments to provide such governments
4 with information about Internet users that has led
5 to the arrest and imprisonment of cyber dissidents,
6 in violation of the corporate responsibility of such
7 companies to protect and uphold human rights.

8 (16) Technology companies in the United
9 States have provided the technology and training to 10 authoritarian foreign governments to assist such
11 governments in filtering and blocking information
12 that promotes democracy and freedom.

13 (17) Technology companies in the United
14 States have failed to develop standards by which 15 they can conduct business with authoritarian foreign
16 governments while protecting human rights to free-
17 dom of speech and freedom of expression.

18 (18) The United States supports the universal
19 right to freedom of speech and freedom of the press.

TITLE III—EXPORT CONTROLS FOR INTERNET-RESTRICTING COUNTRIES

Sec. 301. Feasibility study on establishment of export controls.

Sec. 302. Report.

1 SEC. 2. FINDINGS.

2 Congress makes the following findings:

3 (1) Freedom of speech and freedom of the press
4 are fundamental human rights, and free flow of in-
5 formation on the Internet is protected in Article 19
6 of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights,
7 which guarantees freedom to “receive and impart in-
8 formation and ideas through any media regardless of 9 frontiers”.

10 (2) The Internet has been a success because it
11 quickly provides information to its more than 12 972,000,000 users globally.

13 (3) The growth of the Internet and other infor-
14 mation technologies can be a force for democratic
15 change if the information is not subject to political
16 censorship.

17 (4) The Internet has played a role in bringing
18 international attention to issues the discussion of
19 which are forbidden by authoritarian foreign govern-
20 ments, such as attempts by the Government of the
21 People’s Republic of China to suppress news of the
22 severe acute respiratory syndrome (SARS) outbreak
23 in 2004.

24 (5) The rapid provision of full and uncensored
25 information through the Internet has become a

1 major industry of the United States, and one of its
2 major exports.

3 (6) Political censorship of the Internet degrades
4 the quality of that service and ultimately threatens
5 the integrity and viability of the industry itself, both
6 in the United States and abroad.

7 (7) Authoritarian foreign governments such as
8 the Governments of Belarus, Cuba, Ethiopia, Iran,
9 Laos, North Korea, the People's Republic of China,
10 Tunisia, and Vietnam block, restrict, and monitor
11 the information their citizens try to obtain.

12 (8) Web sites that provide uncensored news and
13 information, such as the Web sites of the Voice of
14 America and Radio Free Asia, are routinely blocked
15 in such countries.

16 (9) In June 2003, the Government of the So-
17 cialist Republic of Vietnam arrested, convicted of
18 "spying", and sentenced to 13 years imprisonment
19 and 3 years house arrest (later reduced on appeal to 20 5 years imprisonment and 3 years house arrest) Dr.
21 Pham Hong Son after he translated an Internet ar-
22 ticle titled "What is Democracy" from the Web site
23 of the United States Embassy in Vietnam.

24 (10) According to the Department of State's
25 Country Reports on Human Rights Practices, the

1 Government of Vietnam in 2004 tightened control of
2 the Internet, requiring Internet agents, such as
3 cyber cafes, to register the personal information of
4 their customers and store records of Internet sites
5 visited by customers. The Vietnamese Government
6 also monitored electronic mail, searched for sensitive
7 key words, and regulated Internet content.

8 (11) The Government of the People's Republic
9 of China has employed censorship of the Internet in
10 violation of Article 35 of the Chinese Constitution,
11 which guarantees freedom of speech, freedom of the
12 press, freedom of assembly, freedom of association,
13 freedom of procession, and freedom of demonstra-
14 tion.

15 (12) This censorship by the Chinese Govern-
16 ment promotes, perpetuates, and exacerbates a
17 xenophobic—and at times particularly anti-Amer-
18 ican—Chinese nationalism, the long-term effect of
19 which will be deleterious to United States efforts to
20 prevent the relationship between the United States
21 and China from becoming hostile.

22 (13) Technology companies in the United
23 States that operate in countries controlled by au-
24 thoritarian foreign governments have a moral re-

1 sponsibility to comply with the principles of the Uni-
2 versal Declaration of Human Rights.

3 (14) Technology companies in the United
4 States have succumbed to pressure by authoritarian
5 foreign governments to provide such governments
6 with information about Internet users that has led
7 to the arrest and imprisonment of cyber dissidents,
8 in violation of the corporate responsibility of such
9 companies to protect and uphold human rights.

10 (15) Technology companies in the United
11 States have provided technology and training to au-
12 thoritarian foreign governments which have been
13 used by such governments in filtering and blocking
14 information that promotes democracy and freedom.

15 (16) Technology companies in the United
16 States should develop standards by which they can
17 conduct business with authoritarian foreign govern-
18 ments while protecting human rights to freedom of 19 speech and freedom of expression.

20 (17) The United States supports the universal
21 right to freedom of speech and freedom of the press.

6 port describing the actions taken to carry out section 301.

Mr. SMITH OF NEW JERSEY. Without objection, the amendment is considered as read. And any amendments offered thereto would be to that text, I would point out to my colleagues.

You have in front of you a summary of H.R. 4780, but I will highlight some of the key provisions.

And again, this legislation, which we have been working on for several months, grew out of an ongoing concern about not just China, but—especially China, but other Internet-restricting countries. And as my colleagues will recall, we held a considerable hearing in this Committee room several months ago; I think it was about a 7½-hour hearing.

We heard from the Administration, we heard from human rights organizations, including Reporters Without Borders; and we also heard from four of the Internet giants who provided us testimony and, frankly, were held to account, I think, for some of the actions that they are taking in Internet-restricting countries.

This legislation is comprehensive. It establishes the promotion of free access to information through the Internet and recognizes it as a fundamental component of U.S. policy. It requires the President to submit to Congress an annual report designating as an Internet-restricting country any nation whose government authorities systematically and substantially restrict Internet freedom.

It creates an Office of Global Internet Freedom in the State Department, not unlike what we did with trafficking, or in the area of religious freedom, as well as in the anti-Semitism area, that would develop and implement a global strategy to combat state-sponsored Internet jamming by repressive foreign governments and to work with Internet companies and the private and nonprofit sectors to develop a voluntary code of minimum corporate standards related to Internet freedom.

The legislation would prohibit U.S. companies from disclosing to foreign officials of Internet-restricting countries information personally identifying a particular user, except for legitimate law enforcement purposes as determined by the U.S. Department of Justice.

With regards to filtering and censorship disclosure, it requires U.S. Internet service providers to disclose to the Office of Global Internet Freedom the terms and parameters that are used to filter or alter search engine results and the uniform resource locators, or URLs, of all data and content that they have removed or blocked in order to comply with the censorship policies of an Internet-restricting country.

Very importantly, we also provide that there be no censoring of U.S. Government sites, which is routine whether it be the religious freedom report or the report on trafficking or country reports on human rights practices. Notoriously, in places like China, that is excised out of what is available to their Internet users, so we would block that. It establishes a civil and criminal penalty regime similar to the Foreign Corrupt Practices Act for violations of these standards.

And that basically outlines the bill which we can go into in further detail if you would like. Would anyone else—Mr. Payne would you like to be heard?

Mr. PAYNE. I will just be very brief.

We did have a very long hearing. It is something that has a lot of concern, and I do believe that we need to move in an affirmative way to try to ensure that the Internet is free. I understand there may be some amendments, and if so, I would like to wait to hear what those amendments are.

Mr. SMITH OF NEW JERSEY. Okay. And let me just say, I am very grateful, Mr. Payne, for your cosponsorship and that of many Members of our Subcommittee and Full Committee.

Would anyone else like to be heard?

If not, the amendment in the nature of a substitute is open for amendment.

Mr. Blumenauer, do you have an amendment?

Mr. BLUMENAUER. Yes, Mr. Chairman. First of all, as I understand it, you have changed the requirement for export controls that would be implemented within 90 days to a 180-day feasibility study by the Department of Commerce.

Mr. SMITH OF NEW JERSEY. The gentleman is correct.

Mr. BLUMENAUER. Let me say I appreciate movement in that direction. One of the things that our Full Committee needs to spend some time on is a seriously broken export control system. I think the evidence is that it is counterproductive for American, not just American business, but I think we can demonstrate that it ends up boomeranging in terms of our own defense interests, because it drives people away from America and to develop their own capacity and to deal with people who are not necessarily friendly to the United States.

So I would like to express my appreciation for making the change on that.

I did not realize that until I sat down that you had changed the text, it wasn't in the version that we had. So because I was prepared to offer an amendment to strike Title III, and I would like to think it through—but let me share my reservation with you, if I may, to have yet another study that the Department of Commerce does.

These people are extraordinarily strained right now. Their capacity to turn around, to deal with legitimate concerns of our constituents, businesses that are dealing with the myriad requirements of export controls right now gives me pause, because I think, frankly, that that is something that has been undercut in terms of the ability of the Department of Commerce to respond.

I think any of you who talk to high-tech interests in your districts would find that they have some problems. And I suspect, although I haven't yet had this conversation specifically with the Department of Commerce, there is a question about their ability to comply.

But let me say, I really appreciate its being a feasibility study so that we have a better approach. I won't do anything at this point; I would like to think about it. But I do think that it is wise for us to go into this very carefully.

Mr. Chairman, I do however, have an amendment that I would offer up, with your permission.

Mr. SMITH OF NEW JERSEY. The Clerk will report the Blumenauer amendment.

Ms. PLUMLEY. Amendment to the amendment in the nature of a substitute to H.R. 4780 offered by Mr. Blumenauer of Oregon.

Mr. SMITH OF NEW JERSEY. I ask unanimous consent the amendment be considered as read and the gentleman is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. BLUMENAUER. Thank you. Thank you, Mr. Chairman. This amendment deals with section 201, and I appreciate the focus that the Chair has had. The fact that we as a Committee have had an opportunity to be exposed to a wide variety of opinions and you move forward with dispatch. I commend you for that. I appreciate it is the way that it has been handled.

But I do want to express reservations about section 201, which, as you mentioned in your summary, would prohibit the United States technology companies from locating personally identifiable information in an Internet-restricting country. These companies, in their efforts to adopt industry standards to protect users, are discussing various approaches to reducing the risk of personally identifiable information being accessed and potentially abused by the authorities. And I think you, Mr. Chairman, and the Members of this Committee are a part of that, that has moved the industry to be more reflective and thoughtful, spurring them along.

But I wonder if, at this point, it is appropriate to have such a categorical prohibition that is contained in 201, in part because it would be a huge competitive disadvantage for most Internet service providers. It, frankly, in addition, may well mean that U.S. companies would be prohibited from doing business in a number of countries who require that personally identifiable information be available within the jurisdiction where the services are provided for law enforcement purposes, just as American law enforcement often gets warrants for personal information from Internet service providers.

I also understand—and I am going here beyond my technological capacity, but some of the certified smart people who work with me and those in the industry and those with interest groups lead us to believe that the prohibition of locating servers or storage facilities with personal identifiable information in Internet-restricting countries would, in effect, be a prohibition on locating all servers or storage facilities in such countries because of the way the Internet operates.

By keeping the United States Internet companies out of these Internet countries, we would actually increase the ability of these countries, and I think we ought to consider this very carefully. We would increase the ability of these countries to actually control the Internet as it would limit the spread of the Internet and keep American companies that I think, in part, as I said, because of what this Subcommittee has started, to sort of think of ways that they can accomplish the objectives that we have offered up to them.

It would thus limit the spread of the Internet and keep the companies who are grappling with these difficult issues—we have their attention, we are working with them, and, frankly, it would be to the benefit of companies around the world who are less concerned with human rights.

Now, I believe we need a tough strategy to deal with the issue of Internet freedom. But I would prefer that that be through bilateral and multilateral challenges that treat it more as a diplomatic issue and a barrier to trade.

Placing heavy restrictions on United States companies may be the simplest approach to take, and I know, after hearing some of the stories, it would make me feel better; but I am not certain that we would be doing what we should to deal with this very troubling issue and advance the cause of Internet freedom and, at the same time, potentially set back American competitiveness.

I respect the deep concerns that the Committee Members have expressed. I appreciate, Mr. Chairman, that you have been moving this forward; but I with all due respect, I suggest that section 201 may well have unintended consequences.

The final point I would make—and I appreciate your referencing Reporters Without Borders’ report, because we have had them in and they provide some great information. But I would urge my colleagues, before we are finally adopting something here, to take a hard look at the list of countries that this includes. It is not just China; it is not just a few that are mentioned in the findings portion of this legislation. There are referenced in their 2006 report—by my count, there are a couple dozen countries, including some issues that relate to the European Union that—I think we are getting a little further along here than we recognize, and it could foreclose a pretty broad sweep of American activity around the world for negligible results.

I appreciate the courtesy and the time in offering this amendment, and I would respectfully request that my fellow Members of the Subcommittee considering approving it.

Thank you.

Mr. SMITH OF NEW JERSEY. Thank you.

I do rise in opposition to the gentleman’s amendment, and I do so with respect. And I appreciate his comments a moment ago, but let me make a couple of points.

The operative language that would be struck is very simple and it reads as such:

“A prohibition of locating personally identifiable information in Internet-restricting countries. A United States business may not locate within a designated Internet-restricting country any electronic communication that contains any personally identifiable information.”

Section 201, which that is, protects those United States Internet companies that are doing right in China and are not locating personally identifiable information in China. And that would include Microsoft; that would include Google. It would not include Yahoo.

You know, you recall we had the Yahoo representative here testifying. There was a difference among our panelists. Google made it very clear that GMail and the information that would identify individuals is not accessible by the Chinese dictatorship. They can’t just ask for it and get it the way they do with Yahoo.

I pointed out, as did other Members during that markup, or that hearing, I should say, that Shi Tao, an individual that got 10 years in Chinese prison simply for sending an e-mail—which obviously was in Yahoo because they locate that information inside the country of China, or the ability to access it. He got 10 years simply for telling other journalists, other individuals, via an e-mail about the restrictions that the government was putting on the commemoration of Tiananmen Square.

In other words, they did a lockdown during the early days in June so that no one talks about the Tiananmen Square massacre. For that, he got 10 years.

That would not have happened with GMail or one of the other Internet companies. So we are saying that there are some companies that are doing it right, and we are trying to make it clear that we want to encourage that, while profoundly discouraging, through the use of law, companies like Yahoo.

So I think if this were to be knocked out, obviously we would have another argument at Full Committee. But it would really gut what I think is one of the essences of this legislation, and that is to prevent the secret police of China, or Belarus, or other Internet-restricting countries, from being able to find out who it is that is on the Internet, go to the door of that person, arrest them and put them into prison. That is the everyday, on-the-ground reality that we are trying to preclude with insertion of section 201, which in all due respect, the gentleman would strike.

So I hope Members would join me in resisting this amendment. I am sure it is well-intentioned, but I think it is misguided.

Would anyone else like to be heard on the amendment?

Ms. MCCOLLUM. Mr. Chairman, I would like to yield my time to Mr. Blumenauer.

Mr. SMITH OF NEW JERSEY. Sure.

Mr. BLUMENAUER. I will not take my additional time and I don't want to pose undue problems, but there are just two things that I would offer for the Committee's consideration, because I do think there is a very real question about how broad this sweep is. And I would hope that nobody would move forward with section 201 unless you are confident about how narrow that is going to be confined.

Second, to consider even if my earlier concern is one that you are comfortable with, the incentive that this provides to drive these companies offshore to have parts in wholly owned subsidiaries in these countries or to abandon markets.

The final point is just—to consider that it goes beyond just the situation with China. I mentioned the Reporters Without Borders' annual report where, included in this, are examples in Egypt, Saudi Arabia, Singapore, South Korea, where there have been abuses of the Internet, things that we would think inappropriate and, in some cases, unconscionable to politically interfere.

The sweep of what is going on in other countries is quite broad, and it goes far beyond what we heard from China. Looking through Tunisia, Thailand, Nepal, the Maldives, as I mentioned, South Korea, Malaysia, Burma, Egypt, Bahrain, these are ones that I have been able to identify where there are—in fact, according to your own source here, Reporters Without Borders—where there has been interference, political repression and attempts at control; and that these tend to be growing with time.

So obviously the intent of this legislation, I think, is honorable. I think it is important for us to work to try and protect.

I want to encourage that—we have heard from all four of our companies, but I do hope that people will look hard at section 201

for the reasons that I have mentioned. And I appreciate my colleague for yielding to me, and I will be quiet at this point. Thank you.

Mr. SMITH OF NEW JERSEY. Thank you. The gentlewoman yields back. Anyone else.

Mr. GREEN. Thank you, Mr. Chairman. I certainly appreciate the sincerity of the gentleman's comments and I think these are issues that we should obviously look at as we go to Full Committee, and should have a more thorough debate and discussion. I am sure that we will. And I look forward to help moving this legislation along in that process and give the gentleman the opportunity to help discuss those further.

Mr. SMITH OF NEW JERSEY. Thank you very much, Mr. Green.

The question occurs on the amendment.

All of those in favor, say aye.

Those opposed, no.

In the opinion of the Chair, the noes have it.

Mr. BLUMENAUER. May I have a division on that?

Mr. SMITH OF NEW JERSEY. The gentleman calls for a division.

All of those in favor of the amendment will raise their hands.

All of those opposed to it.

109TH CONGRESS
2D SESSION

H. R. 5382

To promote the development of democratic institutions and full respect for human rights in the countries of Central Asia.

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

MAY 11, 2006

Mr. SMITH of New Jersey (for himself, Mr. MCINTYRE, Mr. MCCOTTER, Mr. LANTOS, Mr. PITTS, Mr. BURTON of Indiana, and Mrs. JO ANN DAVIS of Virginia) introduced the following bill; which was referred to the Committee on International Relations, and in addition to the Committee on the Judiciary, for a period to be subsequently determined by the Speaker, in each case for consideration of such provisions as fall within the jurisdiction of the committee concerned

A BILL

To promote the development of democratic institutions and full respect for human rights in the countries of Central Asia.

1 Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representa-
2 tives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

3 SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

4 This Act may be cited as the “Central Asia Democ-
5 racy and Human Rights Promotion Act of 2006”.

6 SEC. 2. FINDINGS.

7 Congress finds the following:

1 (1) Fifteen years after independence, the five
2 countries of Central Asia—Kazakhstan, Kyrgyzstan,
3 Tajikistan, Turkmenistan, and Uzbekistan—are
4 struggling, to varying degrees, with their transition
5 from authoritarian rule to democratic societies that
6 fully respect human rights and uphold their freely
7 undertaken commitments as participating States in
8 the Organization for Security and Cooperation in
9 Europe (OSCE).

10 (2) As OSCE participating States, the countries
11 of Central Asia committed themselves in the Charter
12 of Paris for a New Europe to “build, consolidate
13 and strengthen democracy as the only system of gov-
14 ernment of our nations”.

15 (3) In the Global War on Terrorism, the United
16 States is increasingly engaged with the countries of
17 Central Asia on a political, economic, and military
18 basis.

19 (4) In the Global War on Terrorism, policies
20 that bolster authoritarian governments which sup-
21 press and terrorize their own people will ultimately
22 be self defeating, as repression often breeds extre-
23 mism and terrorism.

24 (5) The Final Report of the National Commis-
25 sion on Terrorist Attacks Upon the United States

1 (commonly referred to as the “9/11 Commission”)
2 recommended: “[T]he United States must stand for
3 a better future. One of the lessons of the long Cold
4 War was that short-term gains in cooperating with
5 the most repressive and brutal governments were too
6 often outweighed by long-term setbacks for Amer-
7 ica’s stature and interests.”.

8 (6) The September 2004 Final Report of the
9 Defense Science Board Task Force on Strategic
10 Communication stated: “The perception of intimate
11 U.S. support of tyrannies in the Muslim World is
12 perhaps the critical vulnerability in American strat-
13 egy. It strongly undercuts our message, while
14 strongly promoting that of the enemy.”.

15 (7) In a speech to the United Nations General
16 Assembly on September 21, 2004, President George
17 W. Bush stated: “People everywhere are capable of
18 freedom, and worthy of freedom . . . For too long,
19 many nations, including my own, tolerated, even ex-
20 cused, oppression in the Middle East in the name of
21 stability. Oppression became common, but stability
22 never arrived. We must take a different approach.”.

23 (8) In his second inaugural address on January
24 20, 2005, President George W. Bush stated: “For
25 as long as whole regions of the world simmer in re-

1 sentment and tyranny—prone to ideologies that feed
2 hatred and excuse murder—violence will gather, and
3 multiply in destructive power, and cross the most de-
4 fended borders, and raise a mortal threat.” In this
5 address, President Bush further declared: “It is the
6 policy of the United States to seek and support the
7 growth of democratic movements and institutions in
8 every nation and culture, with the ultimate goal of 9 ending tyranny in our world.”.

10 (9) The October 2005 National Intelligence
11 Strategy of the United States of America, issued by
12 the Director of National Intelligence, stated: “We
13 have learned at our peril that the lack of freedom in
14 one state endangers the peace and freedom of oth-
15 ers. . . . Self-sustaining democratic states are essen-
16 tial to world peace and development.”.

17 (10) The March 2006 National Security Strat-
18 egy of the United States of America states: “The
19 United States must defend liberty and justice be-
20 cause these principles are right and true for all peo-
21 ple everywhere.”.

22 (11) The National Security Strategy of the
23 United States of America further elaborates: “These
24 nonnegotiable demands of human dignity are pro-
25 tected most securely in democracies. The United

1 States Government will work to advance human dig-
2 nity in word and deed, speaking out for freedom and
3 against violations of human rights and allocating ap-
4 propriate resources to advance these ideals.”.

5 SEC. 3. SENSE OF THE CONGRESS.

6 It is the sense of Congress that—

7 (1) the United States should support those govern-
8 ments and individuals making substantial and
9 sustained progress to establish democracy, guarantee
10 the rule of law, and protect human rights;

11 (2) the United States should use every peaceful
12 means at its disposal to encourage the countries of
13 Central Asia to provide greater respect for democ-
14 racy, the rule of law, and human rights, thereby pro-
15 moting the long-term stability and security of the
16 Central Asian region, and ensure that all assistance
17 programs for the Central Asian region support and
18 communicate this goal; and

19 (3) the United States should seek and support
20 the growth of democratic movements and institu-
21 tions in every nation and culture, with the ultimate
22 goal of ending tyranny in our world.

○

Mr. SMITH OF NEW JERSEY. I do have an amendment in the nature of a substitute. Without objection, it will be considered as read.

[The information referred to follows:]

AMENDMENT IN THE NATURE OF A SUBSTITUTE
TO H.R. 5382
OFFERED BY MR. SMITH OF NEW JERSEY

Strike all after the enacting clause and insert the following:

1 SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

2 This Act may be cited as the “Central Asia Democ-
3 racy and Human Rights Promotion Act of 2006”.

4 SEC. 2. FINDINGS.

5 Congress finds the following:

6 (1) Fifteen years after independence, the five
7 countries of Central Asia—Kazakhstan, Kyrgyzstan,
8 Tajikistan, Turkmenistan, and Uzbekistan—are
9 struggling, to varying degrees, with their transition
10 from authoritarian rule to democratic societies that
11 fully respect human rights and uphold their freely
12 undertaken commitments as participating States in
13 the Organization for Security and Cooperation in
14 Europe (OSCE).

15 (2) As OSCE participating States, the countries
16 of Central Asia committed themselves in the Charter
17 of Paris for a New Europe to “build, consolidate

1 and strengthen democracy as the only system of gov-
2 ernment of our nations”.

3 (3) In the Global War on Terrorism, the United
4 States is increasingly engaged with the countries of
5 Central Asia on a political, economic, and military
6 basis.

7 (4) In the Global War on Terrorism, policies
8 that bolster authoritarian governments which sup-
9 press and terrorize their own people will ultimately
10 be self defeating, as repression often breeds extre-
11 mism and terrorism.

12 (5) The Final Report of the National Commis-
13 sion on Terrorist Attacks Upon the United States
14 (commonly referred to as the “9/11 Commission”)
15 recommended: “[T]he United States must stand for
16 a better future. One of the lessons of the long Cold
17 War was that short-term gains in cooperating with
18 the most repressive and brutal governments were too
19 often outweighed by long-term setbacks for Amer-
20 ica’s stature and interests.”.

21 (6) The September 2004 Final Report of the
22 Defense Science Board Task Force on Strategic
23 Communication stated: “The perception of intimate
24 U.S. support of tyrannies in the Muslim World is
25 perhaps the critical vulnerability in American strat-

1 egy. It strongly undercuts our message, while
2 strongly promoting that of the enemy.”.

3 (7) In a speech to the United Nations General
4 Assembly on September 21, 2004, President George
5 W. Bush stated: “People everywhere are capable of
6 freedom, and worthy of freedom . . . For too long,
7 many nations, including my own, tolerated, even ex-
8 cused, oppression in the Middle East in the name of
9 stability. Oppression became common, but stability
10 never arrived. We must take a different approach.”.

11 (8) In his second inaugural address on January
12 20, 2005, President George W. Bush stated: “For
13 as long as whole regions of the world simmer in re-
14 sentment and tyranny—prone to ideologies that feed
15 hatred and excuse murder—violence will gather, and
16 multiply in destructive power, and cross the most de-
17 fended borders, and raise a mortal threat.”. In this
18 address, President Bush further declared: “It is the
19 policy of the United States to seek and support the
20 growth of democratic movements and institutions in
21 every nation and culture, with the ultimate goal of 22 ending tyranny in our world.”.

23 (9) The October 2005 National Intelligence
24 Strategy of the United States of America, issued by
25 the Director of National Intelligence, stated: “We

1 have learned at our peril that the lack of freedom in
2 one state endangers the peace and freedom of oth-
3 ers. . . . Self-sustaining democratic states are essen-
4 tial to world peace and development.”.

5 (10) The March 2006 National Security Strat-
6 egy of the United States of America states: “The
7 United States must defend liberty and justice be-
8 cause these principles are right and true for all peo-
9 ple everywhere.”.

10 (11) The National Security Strategy of the
11 United States of America further elaborates: “These
12 nonnegotiable demands of human dignity are pro-
13 tected most securely in democracies. The United
14 States Government will work to advance human dig-
15 nity in word and deed, speaking out for freedom and
16 against violations of human rights and allocating ap-
17 propriate resources to advance these ideals.”.

18 SEC. 3. SENSE OF THE CONGRESS.

19 It is the sense of Congress that—

20 (1) the United States should support those gov-
21 ernments and individuals making substantial and
22 sustained progress to establish democracy, guarantee
23 the rule of law, and protect human rights;

24 (2) the United States should use every peaceful
25 means at its disposal to encourage the countries of

1 Central Asia to provide greater respect for democ-
2 cracy, the rule of law, and human rights, thereby pro-
3 moting the long-term stability and security of the
4 Central Asian region, and ensure that all assistance
5 programs for the Central Asian region support and
6 communicate this goal; and

7 (3) the United States should seek and support
8 the growth of democratic movements and institu-
9 tions in every nation and culture, with the ultimate
10 goal of ending tyranny in our world.

11 “countries of Central Asia” means Kazakhstan,
12 Kyrgyzstan, Tajikistan, Turkmenistan, and 13 Uzbekistan.

Mr. SMITH OF NEW JERSEY. I would like to recognize myself for just a moment or two to explain the legislation that is before us. Since 9/11, the strategic nature of the troubled region of Central Asia for the United States has become apparent, as the five countries, Kazakhstan, Kyrgyzstan, Tajikistan, Turkmenistan and Uzbekistan are strategically positioned at the crossroads of Europe and Asia.

Sadly, in the 15 years since independence, respect for human rights and democratization is alarmingly poor, and it has worsened.

As Chairman of this Subcommittee and as Co-Chairman of the Commission on Security and Cooperation in Europe, I appreciate the wide spectrum of conditions in Central Asia, which is why I introduced this bill, to help encourage these countries to vigorously pursue greater respect of fundamental freedoms.

Our interest is not just on the governments of the five “stans,” but also on U.S. foreign policy. Considering the increase of U.S. involvement in the region, I have been troubled by the apparent lack of a coherent, uniform policy to encourage these governments to respect human rights and democratization.

Consequently, one of the goals of the bill is to bring greater consistency to United States policy, creating a framework to guide our bilateral relations with Central Asia. The President, through his freedom agenda, has laid out bold principles to guide U.S. foreign policy. The act supports this agenda by providing $97 million in assistance for human rights and democracy training, and $10 million for increased Radio Free Europe, Radio Liberty, and Voice of America broadcasting.

The bill establishes a certification mechanism for the distribution of assistance to each government. The Secretary of State will determine whether each has made “significant improvements” in the protection of human rights. This system will have a national security waiver, and is modeled on the current system in foreign ops approps measures for Kazakhstan, but expanded for all five countries.

In addition, considering the forced return of Uzbek refugees from Kyrgyzstan and Kazakhstan, the act will require the Secretary of State to report on whether any government is forcibly returning Uzbeks or other refugees who have fled violence and political persecution.

This is modeled on language regarding Kyrgyzstan in the foreign ops approps bill and, again, expanded to all five countries. Notably the legislation will create a sanctions section for Uzbekistan. First, the bill places into law the limitations already established, and those limitations prevent funding to the Uzbek Government unless the Secretary of State determines the government is making substantial and continuing progress toward respect for human rights, and that the government begin a credible international investigation of Andijan. We all remember the great—the horrible murder and massacre that occurred there.

The act would also mirror European Union sanctions by establishing a visa ban and export ban on munitions. The sanctions sections also establishes an asset freeze for Uzbek officials, their family members, and their associates implicated in the Andijan massacre or involved in other gross violations of human rights.

Protection of fundamental freedoms for the people of Central Asia will ultimately promote, I believe, and I think we all believe, long-term stability and security in the region. Acquiescence to the status quo challenges the sincerity of our stated objectives as declared in the National Security Strategy for 2006 that the U.S. must defend liberty and justice, because these principles are right and true for all people everywhere.

The bill has been cosponsored by a large number of Members of our Subcommittee, and the Full Committee as well. And at this point, I would yield to Mr. Payne for any comments he might have.

Mr. PAYNE. Thank you, Mr. Chairman. I certainly support the legislation, and I will be brief and urge its adoption.

Mr. SMITH OF NEW JERSEY. Thank you, Mr. Payne. Would any of our Members like to be heard on the legislation, on the amendment in the nature of a substitute?

The question now occurs on the amendment in the nature of a substitute.

All of those in favor, say aye.

Those opposed, say no.

The ayes have it, and the amendment in the nature of a substitute is agreed to. The question occurs on the motion to report the bill, H.R. 5382, favorably, as amended.

All of those in favor of reporting it favorably, say aye.

Those opposed, say no.

The ayes have it, and the motion is approved. Without objection, the staff is directed to make any technical and conforming amendments.

Ms. LEE. Mr. Chairman, I have a question that I would like to ask and enter into a colloquy with you about a bill that was pulled today, the African Development Foundation Bill, H.R. 5652. We have been working in a bipartisan way to try to get all of the issues and difficulties—and there were not many—resolved in this. And we thought coming to this hearing today that everything had been resolved, only to find that the bill was pulled. And I would like to ask you what the objections are now.

Mr. SMITH OF NEW JERSEY. I thank the gentlewoman. First of all, the bill, we have been looking at it. As you know, we held a hearing at which representatives of the Foundation testified. And they did have a text that they talked to us and others about.

We are still just going through the text very carefully. I know that David Abramowitz had some problems with one of the measures, and you were prepared to offer an amendment.

Ms. LEE. I have an amendment to that.

Mr. SMITH OF NEW JERSEY. I know you do. We just want some additional time to study this text and make sure that all of the i's are dotted and the t's are crossed. So we will be looking at it further. I think it is matter of when and not if.

Ms. LEE. Well, Mr. Chairman, I thought we had accomplished that by today. So whatever those i's, whichever i's need dotting, we would like to dot. I guess I would ask is it possible to waive that out of the Subcommittee once we do do that and report it to the Full Committee?

Mr. SMITH OF NEW JERSEY. If we can come to a consensus, that would be fine. I want to spend some additional time. As Mr. Payne knows, as I know, every bill we do, we go through rewrites.

Ms. LEE. I understand that. It never would have been scheduled for today.

Mr. SMITH OF NEW JERSEY. We were trying to, in good faith, to move it as quickly as we can. But, again, it was only introduced yesterday.

Ms. LEE. Well, okay, Mr. Chairman. Let's see if we can do this, if possible, and get it done. We are certainly willing to do this amendment that we discussed and any other amendments that may make sense from your side. But we thought we had it resolved.

Mr. SMITH OF NEW JERSEY. Okay.

Mr. PAYNE. Mr. Chairman, I was also expecting it to come up at this time. I would just urge that the reading of the text and all of the concerns, that maybe they could perhaps be concluded maybe by week end, and if there is a possibility, even if we are going to have a Subcommittee meeting, that we have a special markup at that time.

I certainly feel that as Chairman you need to feel comfortable with the legislation. But if that could be done real quickly, then we would appreciate moving it, since the African Development Foundation has done an outstanding job and there is a dire need for the approval and the request for additional funding. Thank you.

Mr. SMITH OF NEW JERSEY. I think it should be very clear that we had representatives of the African Foundation testify at our hearing. I met with them after the hearing. They had a base text that they wanted us to consider. And I think Ms. Lee, you introduced—you went down to leg counsel, basically put it into that final form.

We just want to look at it carefully. I mean, I was thinking of introducing it myself. So it is not like we are talking—we are talking about something we just need to work further on. I would also say it has not been reauthorized for 25 years, which is 25 years too long. So we will work with you.

Ms. LEE. Thank you very much.

Mr. SMITH OF NEW JERSEY. Is there any other business before the Subcommittee? If not the Subcommittee is adjourned. I thank my colleagues for their participation.

[Whereupon, at 3 o'clock p.m., the Subcommittee was adjourned.]
