DEBBIE JENCSIK is an artist whose work is an integration of three manifestations: imagination, expression and articulation. The visual language that results is in direct proportion to the measure of perception and discernible apprehension toward a particular piece. Allowing for freedom to take risks, an individual palette knife is used to wield Debbie's way toward a fluent outcome. The developmental process of each painting is a matter of exploration and intuitive explosion over rigid artistic technicality and restraint. Through this process, an inimitable style emerges. The finished work is a visual vocabulary declaring radiant truths. The complexion of each piece celebrates imperfections, producing prominence and character. She works unconventionally, without the use of solvents, using liberal amounts of oil paint, indulgent in oily mediums. Debbie resides in Ocean County, N.J.

RICH THOMPSON is a self-taught artist, who has always been drawn to American history and specifically Abraham Lincoln. Rich's work was on display and won visitors' choice at the Rosenbach Museum in Philadelphia during Lincoln's 200th birthday celebration. Currently, Rich has pieces in the Lincoln Collection at the Abraham Lincoln Library and Museum in Springfield, IL, the Lincoln Museum in Hodgenville, Kentucky, The Lincoln Library and Museum in Harrogate, Tennessee, as well as two pieces hanging at Ford's Theatre in Washington, D.C. He has been published in the Civil War Preservation Trust magazine, Hallowed Ground, as well as had a painting used in the playbill at Ford's Theatre's production of "The Rivalry." Rich is a former resident of Mercer County, N.J. At right: "Sunrise." <http://www.onecountryonedestiny.com/>

JIM INZERO earned his Fine Art Degree from the Maryland Institute College of Art. Jim, who lives on the Metedeconk River in New Jersey uses encaustic technique to construct his pieces. He has established himself as one of the Jersey Shore's leading contemporary artists. Jim reflects his lifelong attraction to the shore and its surroundings in every bit of his work. The movement and serenity in his work conveys the gratitude and bounty expressed by the ocean environment. Jim is constantly inspired by the connection he feels to the people around him, which allows for a unique opportunity to express energy and emotions in a way that ultimately will always begin and end at the horizon—the horizon in which he feels represents the meeting place for the highs and lows of life. Jim resides in Ocean County, N.J. Below: "Perception." <http://jiminzero.com/>
